PROVO — Utah County commissioners on Tuesday approved an agreement with the Uinta National Forest to operate the Upper Falls Park in Provo Canyon.

The four-acre park is owned by the Forest Service, but will be maintained as part of the county's park system. The county also operates Vivian Park and Canyon View Park in Provo Canyon, Willow Park on the Jordan River and Benjamin Park in the unincorporated community of Benjamin.

In other business, the commission:

- Approved an agreement with Francis J. Hedquist to provide psychological services to the Utah County Sheriff's Office for potential employees and fitness-for-duty services.

- Appointed Gene Carly, director of the Utah County Housing Authority, as the county's representative on the interlocal entity known as the Utah Valley Consortium of Cities and Counties. The group works to provide low-cost, affordable housing.

- Approved an insurance proposal submitted by the Worker's Compensation Fund of Utah for the period of April 1, 1998 to March 31, 1999. Commissioners said the county's good record, plus a favorable market, resulted in a reduction in worker's compensation premiums of $70,000 during the past year.
